

Take part in our research

British Future is a charity that is researching how people in Newham can feel included in their local community and can feel a sense of belonging

Our research is looking at how people's ethnic background affects their sense of inclusion and belonging

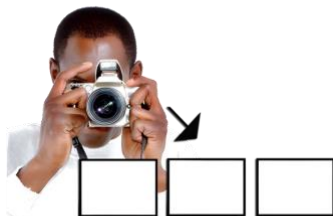

We are also interested in how people's experiences of disability are important to these issues

We want to understand how local services and activities can support people from all backgrounds

We are asking participants at Eastway to take part in our research

Participants can share a photograph with us of a place in Newham where they feel happy and comfortable

Participants will have 2 weeks over August to take a photo or video from a journey that they take in Newham

Participants or carers can send this to us by text or WhatsApp to Ajay

Ajay's number is 07385 633 078

You can also give us an object from the journey and we will visit Eastway to collect these

Up to 10 of the participants who send a photograph will also be offered a chance to take part in a fun workshop afterwards

We will talk about their picture and the places in Newham which they like (or don't like), with games and refreshments

The project researcher, Ajay, will be in touch with participants who send in photos, videos or objects to share invitations for this

Date of workshop
Wednesday 24 September

11am-1pm

Venue
Rix Inclusive Research, The University of East London Docklands campus, 4-6 University Way, London E16 2RD

Our research is taking place until the end of September 2025

After this, we will publish our findings in a report later this year, which will include a section sharing what we heard from the participants at Eastway

We will send this to everyone who takes part

We will ask for consent from participants before involving them in the research

We will not share anybody's name or personal information in our reports

This will be kept confidential and deleted after the project

Participants in the workshop will be paid with a £50 Amazon voucher for taking part
